03 / THE PERSON BEHIND THE PIXELS

Experience is human. Possibility is expanding.

I'm Ramón, a front-end developer, computer engineer and founder of Lead Web. Since 2013, I've built websites for businesses and agencies, with a strong connection to Florida.

Today, I combine that experience with Astro and AI-powered workflows. Tools accelerate the process. The judgment, attention to detail and responsibility stay with me.

Engineering, communicated clearly.

PROJECT	SECTOR	MY ROLE	TECHNOLOGY
Corporate website	Engineering & construction	Design & development	Astro

THE PROJECT

A digital introduction to a multidisciplinary engineering company.

A complex offering. A clearer digital structure.

DISOCA brings together engineering, procurement and construction services, with operations in Venezuela and the Dominican Republic. The website introduces the company, its capabilities and its work.

I designed and developed the site with Astro. The visual direction draws on technical drawings: structured typography, architectural grids and a clear system of numbered sections.

A recognizable visual system

Editorial scale, construction imagery and technical annotations give the site a distinct voice.

Services, clearly organized

A structured overview connects the company’s specialties with supporting project imagery.

A direct path to contact

Dedicated contact information and a project inquiry form make the next step easy to find.

Bring this level of intention to your next website.

A short transformation, not a loading screen.

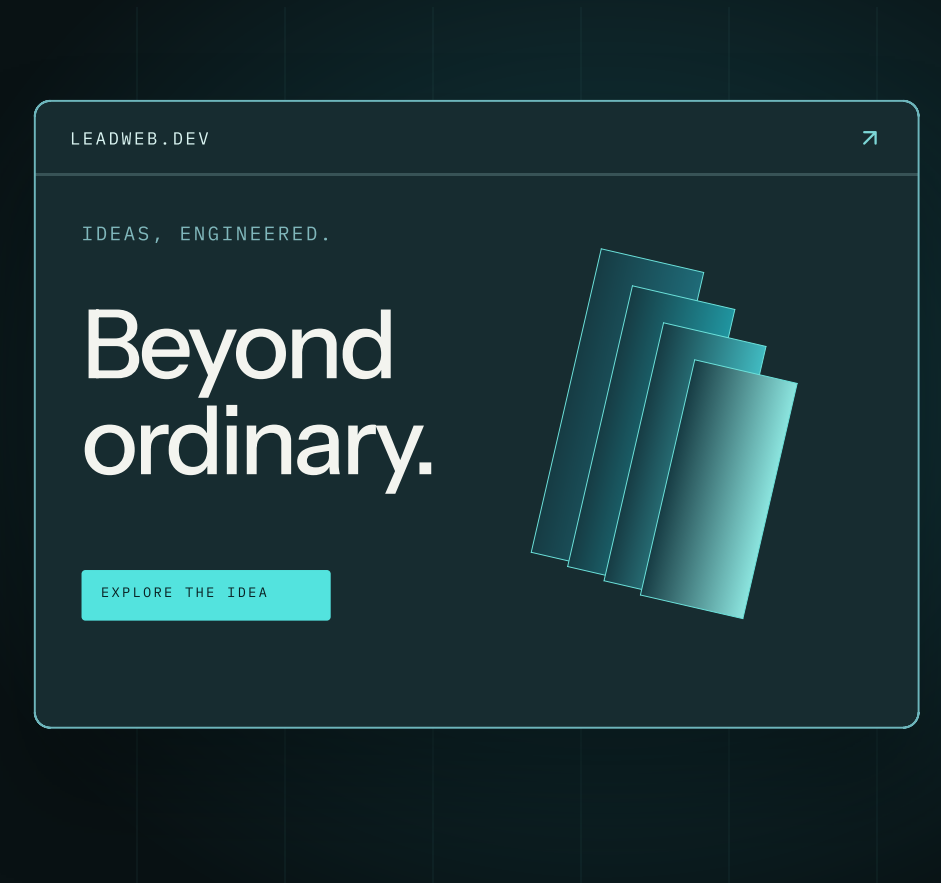

01 / A clear foundation

Structure is visible. The headline and CTA are already usable.

02 / The pieces connect

Layered planes align into a coherent interface. Target: 650–900 ms total.

03 / Ready to explore

The scene rests. Interface / Structure remains an optional interaction.

REDUCED MOTION: render the final composition immediately. No autoplay loop, scroll hijack or cursor replacement.
MOBILE: use the simplified scene and 44 px controls. The canvas is a storyboard, not a measured animation prototype.
